

Scientific Meeting about Protocol and Etiquette

Within the framework of community activities and professional development organized by the Faculty of Mass Communication at Al Falah University, a scientific meeting designed for faculty members and administrative staff was organized regarding protocol and etiquette. The seminar was delivered by Dr. Reneh Ramsis Escaros from the College of Mass Communication.

During the seminar, the concepts and basic protocol and etiquette, as well as the necessary skills in dealing with dignitaries and official guests at different events and forums whether local or international were discussed.

The aim of the university by organizing such meetings is to develop a variety of programs to serve the community which is necessary to meet all recreational, cultural, educational, scientific, and social needs
